

Dear brothers and sisters,

The theme of this week's readings is the boundless generosity of God: God gives freely and in extravagant measure. In the First Reading, (Is 55:1-3) the prophet gives the exiles a vision of the abundant messianic age where wine and milk flow freely. The invitation to 'come to the water' suggests that what is on offer is a divine enhancement of life. All spiritualities seek to tap this source of life which like a spring of water, is freely given and always available. In the consoling Second Reading (Rom 8: 35. 37-39) Paul affirms that nothing can separate us from God's self-gift love of God in Christ Jesus. Today's Gospel (Matt 14:13-21) looks back to God's gift of food in the wilderness while it looks forward to the gift of the Eucharist and to the final banquet in the Kingdom of God.

Herod's execution of John the Baptist highlights the danger in which Jesus himself now stands. So, he withdraws hoping for some peace and quiet. A great crowd of people thwart this plan. What they demand from Jesus in Matthew is healing (in Mark 6:34 he 'teaches'). He responds to their needs and they show no inclination to go home. So, the disciples seeking to protect Jesus urge him to send the crowds to nearby villages to buy provisions for the night.

'Buy' seems to be the word that sparks off Jesus' response. Jesus will not send people away to 'buy' anything – nor should his disciples. We can't buy salvation it is a gift which we can share freely. 'There is no need for them to go; give them something to eat yourselves.' When the astonished disciples point out that they barely have enough for themselves, Jesus provides more than enough food for the whole crowd.

Central to this Gospel is the way in which the episode anticipates the institution of the Eucharist. Jesus' gestures – 'taking (the loaves)', 'blessing', 'breaking', 'giving' – are those he makes at the Last Supper (Matt 26:26). It is the same at mass where the priest takes, blesses, breaks and gives the bread of life. When we participate in the Eucharist we experience the same abundant divine hospitality that the Galilean crowds received from Jesus. The Lord who looked upon the large crowd and took pity on them, looks with similar eyes upon our world and instructs us, as he instructed his disciples, 'Give them something to eat yourselves'. As Pedro Arrupe said, 'The Eucharist will never be complete so long as people still go hungry in our world.'—Blessings, Greg

The Solemnity of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary

Friday 14th August—Mass at 7.00pm (You must register for this Mass. More details on the next page)

Saturday 15th August—Masses at 8.30am and 6.00pm

HOLY DAY OF OBLIGATION

Celebrated every year on August 15, the Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary commemorates the death of Mary and her bodily assumption into Heaven, before her body could begin to decay—a foretaste of our own bodily resurrection at the end of time. Because it signifies the Blessed Virgin's passing into eternal life, it is the most important of all Marian feasts and a Holy Day of Obligation, which means all baptised Catholics are obliged to attend Mass.
